A Letter From Jen, Library Director

Whether or not you make New Year's resolutions, the start of the year is a chance to turn the page, to continue our stories anew.

I believe in the power of stories. They can inspire, educate, entertain, inform, and increase understanding. A story can help us understand not only others, but ourselves. Stories make us better, and sharing stories makes a community stronger.

Libraries hold stories, and not just the stories that are contained within the pages of books. They hold the stories of their patrons, their staff, and their community. Only by sharing all of these stories, our own and those in the pages of books, do we become a stronger more vibrant community. As we share the library's stories with you, we ask that all of you share your stories with us. We want to know you better, and in doing so, hope to know and serve our community better.

I am excited for 2016, a new year, a chance for new connections, with every day a chance for new stories.

"Their story, yours and mine -- it's what we all carry with us on this trip we take, and we owe it to each other to respect our stories and learn from them." —William Carlos Williams

Blind Date with a Book
